IDENTIFYING COUNTERFEIT - THE EXTERIOR

1. Check for the Warranty Seal - Every box of Cuban cigars since 1912 has received a Cuban tax stamp, which generally is affixed to the left front edge. Since Cuban cigars are in high demand, the seal should be newly updated have a good registration of print.
 - a. Habanos s.a. - This the name of the Cuban company which exports Havanas.
 - b. Hecho En Cuba - This words were added in 1960
 - c. Totalmente a mano - This branding, meaning "totally by hand," was added in 1989.
2. Check for the Habanos Chevron - The Chevron is a label featuring a black silhouette of a tobacco leaf. This seal will be on all boxes of Havana cigars exported since 1994.
3. Look for the Hallmarks - The hallmarks are not ink stamps. They are burned-in marks that identify the exporter, and announce that the cigar was made in Cuba by hand. The Hallmarks include:
 4. Look for the factory and date stamp - Habanos places a date stamp on each box.
 5. Look for wear and tear - Various Cuban brands and sizes are packaged in specific boxes. Rather than replicate these boxes, counterfeiters often recycle used boxes.
